CMACAO trustee named to FCHS advisory board

The Franklin County Board of Commissioners recently re-appointed Margaret Willis to the Franklin County Human Services Advisory Board for a term ending September, 1990. Willis is secretary of the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization's (CMACAO) Board of Trustees.

Willis, who is currently serving as President of the Ohio State Consumer Education Association, was honored by the Cincinnati-Hamilton County Community Action Agency for her outstanding service and volunteerism on behalf of low-income persons throughout the State of Ohio.

It was noted during the recognition ceremonies which was held Thursday, Oct. 29 at the Cincinnati-Hamilton County Community Action Agency's Annual Dinner Meeting that Mrs. Willis "...has demonstrated her concern and actively displayed a strong commitment for more than 25 years, towards the eradication of poverty through her leadership and affiliation with both the Ohio Welfare Rights Organization and the Franklin County Welfare Rights Organization."

Willis has served as a member of CMACAO's Board of Trustees for ten years, and as a member of the Marion Franklin Civic Association, the Columbus Legal Aid Board of Trustees, the Ohio Association of Community Action, the Ohio Citizens Council Welfare Reform Task Force, and the Ohio Association for the Homeless.

Founded in 1912 by Mrs. Isabelle Ridgway, IRNC has provided security and happiness to elderly citizens for 75 years now. The beautiful 3 story, 100 bed nursing home employs a professional, team oriented staff that is dedicated to continuing the dream conceived by Mrs. Ridgway. Under the direction of Ms. Causey, the Philosophy of Care is to provide a living environment which will nurture love, support, comfort, reassurance, and motivate through the delivery of services for enhanced quality of life.

Don't feel trapped,' Black methodists told

'DON'T FEEL TRAPPED'--That was what Bishop James Thomas, of the Eastern Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church, told Black Methodists Nov. 6 at the two-day North Central Jurisdiction Black Methodists for Church Renewal 16th annual meeting, held at the Great Southern Hotel, 310 S. High St. Pictured from left are Bishops Woodie White, of Illinois area United Methodist Church, and Thomas. (PHOTO BY TED OSHODI)

COLUMBUS--Bishop James Thomas, of the Eastern Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church, told other Black methodists Friday, Nov. 6 that "there is no way to continue to live productively" if you are discouraged by the socio-economic problems in the Black community.

Addressing the topic, "The Black Church And Continuing Celebration", Bishop Thomas, from North Canton, Ohio, said, "Celebration is based on emotion, but it will not stand alone because of pressures of reality; there is celebration of triumph and there is celebration of maintenance."

Bishop Thomas was delivering his keynote address at the North Central Jurisdiction Black Methodists for Church Renewal 16th annual meeting, held at the Great Southern Hotel, 310 S. High St. The meeting concluded Saturday, Nov. 7.

The theme was "Reclaiming The Black Community For Christ." The meeting was held in an effort to reduce Black exodus from churches in many denominations.

"When you feel free to do what you are called by God to do, there is the triumph," Bishop Thomas said. "People who feel trapped in the Black community cannot afford to feel hurt or discouraged."

Bishop Edsel Ammons, who was at the opening of the regional conference Thursday, Nov. 5, was not available for comment Friday, Nov. 6. Ammons is Bishop of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Bishop Woodie White, of Illinois area United Methodist Church, also attended the conference. Bishops Thomas and White were leaders at workshops, titled, "The Black Pastor - A Time For Personal Assessment And Renewal," held Friday.

Hearing ordered on new trial for Dr. Jackson

Arguments on whether Blacks were excused for racial reasons from a jury that tried Edward F. Jackson Jr., will be heard Nov. 23. The hearing will determine whether Jackson, a former Columbus physician, convicted of rapes, will receive a new trial.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently ordered the hearing.

Meanwhile, the Ohio Supreme Court has appointed Judge Robert Nichols of Madison County Common Pleas Court to preside.

Franklin County Common Pleas Court Judge Frederick T. Williams and Assistant County

Prosecutor Edward Morgan, will be called as witnesses at the hearing in Cincinnati.

Jackson was sentenced to 91 to 320 years and fined $60,000 by Judge Williams. Jackson's conviction was upheld by the Hamilton County Court of Appeals but was reversed by the U.S. Supreme Court because Morgan, using his rights to excuse prospective jurors without giving a reason, removed Black prospective jurors.

According to court records, Morgan removed two Black prospective and one white prospective jurors.

Jackson also was convicted on 21 rapes and 39 related felonies in a separate 1983 trial in Summit County.

The U.S. Supreme Court returned the Jackson case on the basis of a decision in a Kentucky case that stated a person was denied a fair trial because all members of the defendant's race was removed from the jury for racial reasons.

Franklin County Prosecutor Michael Miller and Assistant Prosecutor Patrick Sheeran will represent the state at the hearing.

Judge Allen wins, makes history

CINCINNATI--Incumbent Hamilton County Municipal Court Judge Nadine Allen made history Tuesday when she became the first Black person to ever be elected in a county-wide office in a race against a white opponent.

In results listed at Call and Post press time, Judge had received over 64,000 votes, to command 55 percent of the votes cast. Allen is a democrat. Republican party candidate Vickie Whitfield, who is also Black, received 24,000 votes at last count, while independent Republican candidate Daniel Breyer, who is white, received over 28,000 of the votes cast.

Judge Allen's term on the bench will expire at the end of 1989; therefore, the 38-year-old Judge will have to run for reelection in 2 years.

Allen was appointed to the Municipal Court bench in 1984 by Governor Richard F. Celeste, which resulted in her becoming the first Black woman to ever sit on the local bench. In 1985, however, Allen ran for election against white Republican Delore Hildebrandt, and she was beaten by nearly 13,000 votes.

In April of this year the governor appointed Allen to the Municipal Court bench, once again, when he appointed another Black Hamilton County Municipal Court Judge, Jack Sherman, Jr., to a vacancy on the Court of Common Pleas.

Allen ran as a sitting judge with many local endorsements in this race, while Whitfield was an unknown who had lived in Hamilton County for only two years. Breyer became upset at the Republican party's selection of Whitfield and decided to run himself. With the two Republicans dividing their party's votes, Allen was almost assured a victory.

In other races, Republican city councilman J. Kenneth Blackwell retained his seat with a strong showing, while up-and-coming Democrat Tyrone Yates narrowly missed a seat on the 9-member council. He finished twelfth in a 26-person race. Republican Len Garrett and Charterite Sara Gardner finished way down on the list of candidates.

Black Democratic Municipal Court candidate George Bunyan lost in his race to defeat sitting Republican Judge David Albenese.

In a final count, it was revealed that the Cincinnati School District's levy passed by a mere 149 votes out of an overall 100 thousand votes cast.

Voters also approved, by a 2-1 margin, a charter amendment that would make the councilman getting the most votes automatically the mayor. Presently, the mayor is elected by city council. At Call and Post press time, Blackwell who was the former mayor of Cincinnati, and Democrat Charles J. Lunken were in a tight race for the top spot.

ALL WINNERS! Judicial races in Cleveland and Cincinnati were hot. Six Black candidates, including Shirley Strickland Saffold and Mabel Jasper (top) won judicial seats in the Cleveland Municipal Court and Judge Nadine Allen (bottom right) retained her Hamilton County Municipal Court seat, making her the first Black woman to be elected to the county bench, while in other elections, Kenneth J. Blackwell (bottom left) retained his Cincinnati Council seat and at press time was a top contender for the city's Mayor's post.

JOHN HODGES
...new labor federation proxy

DONALD DAY
...first black afl-cio officer

Day tapped for AFL-CIO post

COLUMBUS In an action with historic overtones, the Ohio AFL-CIO has named public employee labor leader Donald K. Day as secretary-treasurer of the organization.

He replaces John Hodges, who was recently appointed president of the state labor federation.

Day, first vice-president of AFSCME Ohio Council 8, the statewide body of state, county and municipal employees, becomes the first Black ever to hold one of the top two positions in the Ohio AFL-CIO. He is also the first officer in the state labor federation to come from AFSCME, which represents more than 85,000 public sector workers as the largest union in Ohio.

Historically, the two elective posts within the state AFL-CIO were split between a president who was a representative of the building trades, which came from the old American Federation of Labor, and secretary-treasurer who came from the Steelworkers, which was the largest union in the old Congress of Industrial Organizations. However, the explosive growth of AFSCME, the public sector union, has resulted in the increased activism of that body within the AFL-CIO, as represented by the Day candidacy and election.

Day was "not overly surprised" by the vote. "There's no question that, because of our growth in membership, we are the largest union in the AFL-CIO, and that our voice should be heard," Day said.

Day's elevation to secretary-treasurer also brings him to a rarified level nationally: only one other Black in the country, in Michigan, sits in a similar position, Day said.

However, Day added that his race had not become an issue. He was chosen, he asserted, because of his experience in the legislature as a key lobbyist for AFSCME.

Day will resign his position with AFSCME with his election to the AFL-CIO post, and that labor organization is expected to hold an election before the end of the year to name his replacement. It was unknown whether one of the candidates for the post would be Black, although the union has historically been around one-third Black in its membership.

In wake of victory, a question: where do Democrats go from here?

By GILBERT PRICE
Call and Post Staff Writer

The sense of joy and relief was palpable as Democrats of Franklin County celebrated after the polls had closed on Nov. 3.

Each return on the clock resulted in cheer, as the die-hard Dems applauded the implausible: the election of two Democratic judicial candidates (including a Black female, Judge Janet Jackson) in a county where two such judges had never been elected at one time before.

Yet the joy and revelry masked a serious question: what does the future hold for the Franklin County Democratic party?

To Fran Ryan, it was "a new beginning." The party had reached its nadir in March of 1987, as staff bungling had resulted in the failure to place a candidate on the ballot for the mayoralty and a municipal court seat. The fiasco had resulted in the resignation, delayed until after the November election, of Franklin County Democratic chairman Don Spicer and the appointment of several committees to study problems with organization and fundraising. Ryan saw the election as being the first hint that the worst of the problems were over, and the party was rebounding.

But others, including State Rep. Ray Miller, were more skeptical. Asserting that the victories on the part of Jackson and Judge Thomas Martin were more the result of their strong campaigning than of the assistance of the party, Miller argued, "there's an awful lot of work to be done."

It seems that both are right. What the election seemed to prove was, as state Democratic party chair James Ruvolo said, that the voters in Franklin county would support a strong, well financed, aggressive candidate of either party who had the credentials to be elected. The Democratic had clearly been successful in identifying good candidates, and providing them a forum to help carry out their campaigns.

However, the party infrastructure remained badly decayed, even in the light of the victories. The last day of the county chairman, Spicer, was Nov. 3. Four contenders, including Ryan, former appellate court judge Gary Tyack, from county treasurer Herb Pfeiffer and Terry James, are interested in the post.

An 11-member steering committee of the party, which will include five Blacks, has begun to meet on choosing a successor to Spicer, and will make a recommendation to the Democratic Central Committee on Dec. 2. The five Black members are: Jerry Hammond, Ray Miller, Lillie Williams, Mildred Ford, and Donald Day.

However, even the election of a new chair will not solve all the problems of the Franklin County Democratic party. The recent petition fiasco demonstrated what everyone had already known: that the party had seen an extraordinary diminution of its ability to mobilize grass-roots support in a broad range of neighborhoods. That its finances were severely depleted -- even with the presence of a second-term Democratic governor in the state capital, and all the resources that such control of state government can generate. That its leadership had degenerated into feuding factions, which often did not work with each other.

John Greene, first vice-chairman of the party, said that the party had "laid a good foundation" with the recent elections. However, he added that "it's up to (Democrats) to move forward" to rebuild the party.

Ray Miller echoed that sentiment. "I can't say we have a strong Democratic party in Franklin County," even in the wake of the victories, Miller stated. However, he added, "I do think the party is strengthened."

Miller said the first item was the election of a strong party chairman, and that the chairman would have to work with party leadership to "build the party from the ground up."

The fact sheet, developed by the lung association, deals with the possible danger from radon, where it occurs, how it is detected and measured, and how to reduce radon exposure in the home.

'Minority Student Day'

"Minority Student Day," a pilot program organized by Otterbein College's associate director of admissions Jeanne Talley, will bring students from 12 area high schools to the college campus on Wednesday, Nov. 18.

Approximately 50 to 60 students who have been nominated by their guidance counselors are expected to attend the event where they will meet with faculty and students, visit campus facilities and talk with other minority students about campus life at Otterbein College.

Students will be picked up at their respective high schools and brought to campus for an early morning welcome reception with faculty and administration in the Campus Center. Activities will continue through early afternoon, and students will be returned to their high schools by 1:30 p.m.

Talley says that she hopes this special event "will introduce Otterbein as a viable college choice for minority students in the Columbus area, help provide them with information about our institution and answer questions they may have about a college education in general."

IN OUR OPINION

The Rinehart coronation

Mayor Dana G. "Buck" Rinehart has clearly won re-election. Running with only write-in opposition after the incredible bumbling of the county's Democratic party, Rinehart probably would have been elected even if he had dropped dead before the election was held.

While the Democrats' incompetence is fortuitous for Rinehart, it is not fortuitous for the city. There are a number of issues which the mayor should be called on to address, and to consider in his second administration.

One is housing. A very common pattern is beginning to replicate itself in Columbus -- the pattern of white (and Black) middle-class flight to suburban and exurban areas, leaving a decaying city center and a reduction in the housing stock for the poor.

While he was the mayor's director of Human Services, Khari Enaharo attempted to develop a program which would have had the city's housing developers make commitments to provide units for low-income families as a price for being allowed other, more profitable homes. Rinehart rejected this approach, calling it "socialism." However, the issue of housing will not go away, and we urge the mayor to develop a plan which will help provide housing to those who remain trapped in the city's core.

Also of concern is the seeming increase in poverty and homelessness within Columbus. It is clear that the city's food pantries and homeless shelters are being stretched to their limits in their efforts to help all who need help. The Reagan administration's strangulation of programs which aided the poor, such as its tight rein on the food stamp program, has resulted in severe problems for many of this nation's -- and Columbus' -- poorest citizens.

We admit that the mayor and city council cannot financially address all the needs of those who may need help, but they must effectively demonstrate the same level of concern and compassion for those who have little to offer as they do for those megacorporations who have much to offer.

Already, we believe the mayor is on the right track on one issue: the annexation of the Wexner development, popularly called "Wexley", in exchange for city sewer and water services. This annexation will increase the diversity within the city limits, and provide much-needed funds to the city's schools.

There are a number of issues which the mayor must face as he bathes in his election by acclamation. While this one was uncontested, it is no secret that the mayor has aspirations for higher office. How well he addresses these issues of equity and compassion will obviously affect whether the voters will so crown him again.

The Day appointment

The Ohio AFL-CIO has taken a positive step forward by its appointment of public union labor leader Donald K. Day as its secretary-treasurer, the second highest post in the statewide labor federation.

Day's appointment makes him one of the highest-ranking Black state union officials in the nation. The only other Black in a similar position is the secretary-treasurer of the labor federation in Michigan. As such, Day has become both a representative and a spokesperson for the needs of labor generally and Black laborers in particular.

The appointment also reflects positively on the state AFL-CIO. Day asserts, and we have no reason to dispute him, that race was not a factor in his selection, only his ability to perform the job of helping to restructure and reinvigorate the statewide voice for Ohio's union workers. This speaks well of the federation's ability to evaluate and reward qualified union leaders who happen to be Black.

The labor movement has, for more than 20 years, walked with Blacks on issues of civil rights and combating poverty. We believe this appointment demonstrates that the federation, in its own policies, gives more than lip service to the principles of equality and merit, and we applaud its choice.

We also hope that Day will continue to function as a strong voice for Blacks in the labor movement, as he has been a strong and articulate voice for Blacks in the community.

The United Way

WKYC-TV could have severely damaged the United Way Service if the public had been gullible enough to accept the station's sensationalized expose of alleged political activity by the United Way.

If published ratings of the station's newscasts are accurate, a lot fewer people saw the reports than if any other VHF station had broadcast them. But damage has been done.

A seed has been planted. In all probability the reports will be exploited by persons who annually oppose the United Way Campaign. Similarly, news accounts that dispute the relative worth of United Way staffers are misleading.

Both reports demonstrate an ignorance about the United Way, what it stands for, and the difficulties of raising ever increasing sums of money from unconcerned, uncaring and largely indifferent people.

It's a challenge.

The United Way is hard work. The professional staff not only works day to day but must also be able to marshal hundreds-of-thousands of dollars worth of loaned manpower to help campaigns reach annual goals.

The staff is the foundation upon which the United Way rests. Mornings, nights and weekends they watch over a multitude of functions which support the United Way.

Good people are expensive. The United Way is no exception.

As a resourceful steward of charitable welfare in this community, the United Way's support of a health and human services levy, which yields $44 million per year, is a prudent and wise investment well within the limits of the organization's mission.

To properly serve young people they must acquire the full faith and charity of the public. A self-imposed tax is authoritative endorsement.

The United Way's support of social causes makes sense because it is really self-protection against future increases in demand that can't be met.

For many people, United Way agencies are the difference in their lives. To sensationalize very old and very public news is a disservice to the Community.

We support the United Way Services' effort to develop resources to help fulfill their mission to meet human needs, and congratulate the staff and volunteers for exceeding this year's goal.

IN YOUR OPINION

Winning candidate offers sincere thanks

I won re-election to the Cleveland Municipal Court. As you can imagine, I am very happy.

But I am also happy and appreciative that my re-election campaign had Harry Alexander's and the Call and Post express and unequivocal support.

I have now won election to all three branches: legislative, executive and judicial. And over the years, in each of those elections, I have had the endorsement and help of the Call and Post. I will always be grateful for that support from your newspaper that began with W.O. Walker and has continued under Alexander's leadership.

Sincerely,

Collective power

Election-87 is history. Like all events of the human experience, it also leaves behind facts and messages to be deciphered, studied and used as bases for future human experiences.

From a Black perspective, in viewing the local Columbus/Franklin County elections, the results revealed both the weakness and strength of the Black electorate in these areas.

Prior to the November 3 election date, it was strongly publicized that the Black vote was crucial to the passage of Issue 4 -- The Columbus Convention Center. Great effort, including the recruitment and support of influential Black persons and organizations, was generated to get out the message that, "This time, it's for us." What wasn't clear was who is "us?"

Black conditions for support were early on presented to the Issue 4 planners. These conditions were not honored and Black voters either voted by large majority against it or stayed at home. Result, doomday for Issue 4.

On Issue 3 -- Election of Supreme Court and Appeals Court Judges. The danger there was clear, even to a blind person. It is difficult at best to get a Black or other minority candidate elected to lower court benches in this area by popular vote. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that it would be impossible to have one appointed to the higher court benches if they had to pass the screening of a select controlling commission. This issue was rightly defeated.

The issues that passed were clear in the benefits and rewards that the entire electorate would enjoy indiscriminately.

The successes that Judge Janet Jackson, Jerry Hammond and Sharlene Morgan and other Black candidates enjoyed were clearly the result of solid Black voting and supportive minority voting. The defeats of Loretta Heard, Ray Jones, and other Black candidates were results of obstacles too large for solid Black voting to overcome and no reflection on their qualifications.

The rising Black voter power awareness in the Columbus/Franklin County envisions great social and racial changes in the scheme of things. Economically, there is an equally great need for Black power awareness.

It has been estimated that the annual spending worth of Black Americans collectively is $200 billion. Fifth largest in the world. Larger than Canada. I don't know how this breaks down proportionately for Columbus/Franklin County Area Blacks in the statistic.

I am convinced that if we ever collectively learn to manage our "green" -- we will soon go from bad ... to down right mean.

Cultural damage

For more than two centuries, Jamaicans have been migrating to these United States of America. Yes, this nation with its vast lands, unlimited resources and tremendous opportunities. Jamaicans -- whom history will willingly support the fact -- have been contributing tremendously to the growth and continued viability of this nation decades before immigration had liberalized its laws -- some 40 years ago.

Jamaican Nationals in U.S.A. have consistently worked very well, with pride and dignity, amidst all strifes and struggles of class, racial and ethnic prejudices; establishing themselves most peaceably, positively and progressively in all levels of the American Society.

History books will support the fact that as early as in the '1700s' Jamaican born Alexander Dallas, Secretary to the U.S. Treasury at a time when this nation was undergoing tremendous financial disaster, thru stringent measures, had successfully brought the Treasury up to over $20 million dollars.

Dallas was most instrumental in the formation of the Republican Party, and whose son Mifflin was once Vice President of these United States, with the City of Dallas, Texas, named after him.

The first Black man in the U.S. to receive a college degree was Jamaican born (Russwurm). The list of historic notables could go on and on. Jamaicans have been serving the U.S. Military in action outstandingly and heroically since World War I, and -- do you remember that when World War II broke out -- when all able-bodied American men were pulled into action -- 'twas primarily Jamaicans who were imported or volunteered to come to the U.S. as farm workers or industrial workers to keep the farms and factories going, etc. I would not even begin to update you on the later contributions that Jamaicans have continued to make in this society -- and all positive.

Some of our American counterparts have often questioned or wondered why are we here. Some have even envied and resented our prominent status, involvements and contributions in our U.S. Communities but Jamaicans have legitimately earned their rights and privileges in this American Society.

What has been appalling is the constant and unnecessary display and disregard by the media (although maybe unintentional) for a people and nation who have always been law abiding, and have respected and supported this country.

The fact that other criminal individuals or organizations in this country and its history -- no matter how hostile -- have never been so generously ethnicized as have these so-called "Posse Gangs." Why?

As a Jamaican National, to pick-up the newspaper, hear on the radio or watch on TV "The Jamaicans are responsible for over 200 murders; the Jamaicans are in control of the crack operations in such and such a city; the Jamaican mafia has been the most brutal gang in the U.S. history, etc., etc.", it hurts like hell.

I believe not all involved in these gangs and their horrid activities are really Jamaicans. If you stop and think for a moment, you will begin to wonder, how could any foreign and Black group of individuals, especially in these times, manage to infiltrate, structure and control any such major operations across the U.S.

Think about it. I believe and agree that any persons guilty of committing a crime against our society should be duly tried, prosecuted and punished accordingly. Yet, I believe that the media should begin to look at the harm, disrespect, the injustice, stigma, and most of all, the irreparable damage being done to the Real Jamaican Communities. More importantly, the Jamaican Nationals who are citizens or permanent residents of the United States, who are being bundled right along with the alleged criminals -- by the U.S. media.

I am taking full advantage of this medium to appeal to my fellow Jamaicans, and friends of Jamaica to please address this problem to your local media, so that (although these crimes like any other such crimes are naturally noteworthy) these alleged criminals should not be characterized with the ethnic identity that has been so fluid -- whenever and wherever reported upon.

The same can only be considered useful -- if it is the media's intent to glamorize or enhance the dreadful situation, at the same time most inadvertently, damaging the peaceful and respectable reputation of decent law-abiding Jamaican-Americans in this country.

I thank you for your anticipated cooperation.

OTHER OPINIONS

The breakthrough victories for Municipal Court Judges Nadine Allen and Janet Jackson may have a positive fall-out for other Blacks who are interested in becoming judges.

In the past, the histories of politics in Hamilton County, where Allen defeated two contenders, and Franklin County, where Jackson topped assistant county prosecutor Edward Moran, were similar: Democrats were usually defeated, and Black Democrats were hopeless.

Over a period since 1960, for example, only five Democratic judicial candidates had ever been elected to office in Franklin County, with the most recent having been in 1985, when Municipal Court Judge Peggy Bryant was able to retain her seat.

In both counties, one of the major problems was the county-wide nature of the municipal courts. Even where Democrats ran well in the cities of Columbus and Cincinnati, they were usually overwhelmed by the strong Republicanism of the suburban areas which ring those cities. In Franklin County, for example, white Democratic judi-

"Hopefully, it means that the ability of the person and the effort in the campaign is a Democrat or Republican or Black or White," Ruvolo said.

"Ruvolo concluded. In Franklin County, there remains a vacancy on the Common Pleas Court, with the death of Republican Judge James Britt. Black lawyers in Franklin County are looking to Gov. Celeste to appoint a Black to that position. If he did, it would be the first time a Black had been appointed to the Common Pleas bench in Franklin County. At the same time that Jackson and Allen were being elected, the "Merit Selection" plan, which would have placed the nominating of Supreme Court and Appellate Court judges in the hands of a nonpartisan committee, was overwhelmingly rejected by the voters. It is possible that the voters are now willing to look closely at the qualifications of Blacks and women, regardless of what the advocates of "merit selection" say. Now, the Celeste administration will have another opportunity to demonstrate that Black judicial candidates can win.

challengers. But the election of both candidates should open opportunities for other strong Black judicial candidates, because their election seems to have proven that quality candidates can win. Or so believes James Ruvolo, head of the Ohio Democratic party. He is unwilling to see a trend in these two elections, attributing the victories to "two good candidates who worked hard."

In his remarks, Ruvolo admitted that this was, in some ways, an indictment of the efforts of the Democratic party in the past: that it had been unable to attract candidates who could win. However, he believes that these victories will serve to attract good candidates. "It says to good Black Democrats in particular, if you have the opportunity and can put the campaign together, you have a chance to win in those counties,

Much of what's "normal" in today's society would have been seen as bizarre and incomprehensible two or three generations ago.

Thanks to thieves and vandals we must have exact change and sit on hard plastic seats when we use public transportation. Stores that used to have many entrances now have fewer. When trying on clothes, you often must also "try on" heavy anti-shoplifting devices.

Some high schools have day care centers for their students' babies. Many schools — high school and elementary — have guards patrolling the hallways, police backup outside, and no education inside.

And for many adults, their greatest fear is the sight of a group of youngsters heading their way.

Kids have always been barbarians. And we, as parents and teachers, have only 18 years to civilize them before turning them loose on the rest of society. Our common sense served us well until the "experts" in sociology and psychology came along to tell us we were doing it all wrong.

They told us we shouldn't beat our children, but should use positive reinforcement instead. They told us criminals weren't to blame; society was. In the process everyone was "endowed" with rights but without responsibility.

As a youngster, I was a barbarian, and on many occasions I felt the civilizing influence of the strap on my center of multitudinous nerve endings. On such occasions, I would have liked to be able to tell Mom that society made me do it. But knowing Mom, if I had said something like that, she would have laid on a few extra whacks to punish society.

If today's deep-thinkers had been around way back then, I might still be a barbarian, and Mom would probably be in jail for child abuse.

Crime is rampant, especially paroling them to halfway houses so they can terrorize the community.

In Chicago, like many other cities, the average number of arrests before a youngster ever at today's have-your-cake-and-eat-it-too mentality. The AIDS threat is a prime example of this mentality. We know that anal intercourse between men is a major means of AIDS transmission. How about public health officials warning against it? We know also that marital infidelity is another means of AIDS transmission, so how about restoring marital fidelity. And we know that premarital intercourse causes teenage pregnancy. So why don't we teach our kids the virtue and value of just saying "no."

In the eyes of today's deep-thinkers on college campuses, in government agencies, and in the news media, these methods of control are "too simplistic." They want people to have their cake and eat it too.

Fortunately, increasing numbers of Americans are beginning to realize that the Victorian standards of sex conduct — standards we discarded in the '60s, like fidelity in marriage and abstinence before — might not be a bad idea.

The major have-your-cake-and-eat-it-too achievement of today's deep thinkers is in the area of poverty. They offer safety nets, jobs programs, affirmative action, and other such schema as anti-poverty weapons. What happened to that old-fashioned poverty program of hard work, sacrifice and thrift? You'll find that most people who've managed to escape poverty are graduates of that school of hard knocks.

The bottom line is: We must find a humane way to get rid of the experts, and get back to plain, old-fashioned, ordinary common sense.

Flexibility in career preparation road to employment success

BY SHERMAN N. MILLER
Call and Post contributing writer

Today, it is not uncommon to hear of someone celebrating their 100th birthday. Yet, if we examine just a few of the technological advances that have matured during these centenarians' life span, we are compelled to reassess our educational preparation of tomorrow's leaders. Let me highlight merely six of the key inventions that have made paradigm shifts in our way of life.

- The light bulb gave man a full 24-hour productive work day.
- The telephone permitted instant two-way voice communication without regard for distance.
- The automobile freed man to travel unrestricted by commercial transit schedules.
- The airplane diminished the significance of distance throughout the world.
- The television brought instant communication with the masses through both voice and pictures.
- The computer opened the "Information Age."

You may wonder, what is the common link between each of these discoveries? I submit to you, students, families, and friends that with the commercialization of these discoveries excellence has been redefined in the world marketplace.

Business meetings held in California or Tokyo are now practical business activities, some one is expected to regularly make calls in these regions.

Few business people give a second thought to a 100-mile round trip in an automobile to make a customer call.

Many American plants operate on 24-hour-per-day schedules to fully utilize their equipment.

Computer monitor plant operations, do word processing, perform complex technical calculations, and so on.

On the other hand, America's huge domestic market is being fully integrated into the world market. Which poses the question: What should be the preparation for America's leadership of tomorrow?

Since we have already made a case for the rapid evolution of technology, tomorrow's workforce will have to have scientific literacy. These leaders must be able to discern between facts and fantasy. Professionals and non-professionals shall have to understand the impact of new technologies on their careers or they will become unemployed middle-aged victims of career obsolescence.

I urge you to take special notice of the three budding technologies of Robotics, artificial intelligence, and super conductivity because their synergism has the potential to force rapid obsolescence on the careers of many of today's college students.

Selling one's products in the world marketplace requires one to communicate with his prospective customers in the customers' native language. My own experiences lead me to conclude that traditional ways of teaching foreign languages in colleges and secondary school are inadequate to meet the demands of the world market. The emphasis must be placed upon conversation and reading skills so businesspersons may communicate directly with the customers without the aid of an interpreter — who may or may not understand the discipline they are translating.

This precludes the program of the customers' true wants and needs getting lost in the translation from one language to another. Some recommended languages to pursue for the 21st Century marketplaces are Mandarin Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, Spanish, and Russian.

Colleges must encourage students to have a willingness to accept risk; that is learning to see prudent risks as an American business norm whilst simultaneously devising plans to manage failure when programs are unsuccessful. As the adage goes, "Anyone who has never experienced a failure has not accomplished very much."

The operative word going into the 21st Century is "flexibility". Today's college students should not concentrate solely on their major course of study; they must also take solid minors.

The answer lies with you!

NABSE to observe African American Education Week

The Franklin County Alliance of Black School Educators will join in the celebration of African American Education Week Nov. 15-22 to provide stimulation toward improving the quality of educational experiences in the lives of African American children, according to Richard C. Kelsey, president elect of the organization.

Recently, the National Alliance of Black School Educators (NABSE) adopted a resolution, declaring the week of Nov. 15 as the African American Education Week.

Kelsey said, "African American Week can offer local institutions the opportunity to focus resources on research, programs and strategies for 'Saving the African American Child.'"

The national group believes that:

- We must face the critical shortage of African American educators.
- We must promote academic excellence as the cornerstone of achievement and upward mobility for African American students.

RICHARD C. KELSEY

- We must promote teaching as a viable option for African Americans.
- We must participate in celebrations and on going activities which promote and demand educational equity for African Americans.

Education has been one of the major avenues which has led toward achievement of Black people in the United States of America. Columbus, Ohio is no exception to this. Therefore, the Franklin County Alliance of Black School Educators has declared and endorsed Nov. 15-22 as African American Education Week. It is incumbent upon all churches, universities, school districts, other significant institutions and individuals in Central Ohio to make this a memorable week in our efforts to save African American children.

We can begin by first establishing a written document on the history of African American Education in Columbus, Ohio. Second, it is critical that every African American household have at least one room in their home which is dedicated to Black education (pictures, books, tapes). Third, it is important that each Black church organize and implement an active Black Education program weekly. Fourth, it is vital that newspaper, radio, television, and other media provide monthly programs on Black Education.

Usually, when Black organizations or individuals declare a celebration for themselves there is opposition. Thus, it is expected that there will be opposition by those who wish to continue the oppression of Black people. Even the opposers must know that Black students need many learning tools and resources to motivate and encourage them to exhibit and achieve both cultural and academic excellence in their schools. The Franklin County Alliance of Black School Educators believes that the celebration of African American Education Week (November 15-22) will provide stimulation toward improving the quality of educational experiences in the lives of African American children. Further, African American Education Week can offer local, institutions the opportunity to focus resources on research, programs and strategies for "Saving the African American Child."

The following is the Resolution as passed by the National Alliance of Black School Educators:

- WHEREAS the enrollment of African American students in urban public school districts is expected to increase significantly by 1990, but the number of African American educators available to teach these students is expected to decline;
- WHEREAS a critical shortage of African American educators already exists in the teaching force, and the percentage of African Americans pursuing careers in education has declined significantly in recent years;
- WHEREAS the National Alliance of Black School Educators promotes academic excellence as the cornerstone of achievement and upward mobility for African American students and promotes teaching as a viable career option for African Americans;

- WHEREAS the commitment of the National Alliance of Black School Educators to African American education is consistent with the current movement in the United States to reform education in the public schools; and
- WHEREAS the National Alliance of Black School Educators has initiated and will coordinate a celebration of African American Education that will occur during the week of Nov. 15, now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representative of the United States of America by Congress assembled, that the week beginning Nov. 15, 1987, is designated as African American Education Week, and the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation calling upon:

community organizations that share an interest in the education of African Americans to intensify their efforts to support the achievement of academic excellence by African Americans.

CHRISTMAS GOSPEL-MUSICAL

Actors talk about characters in CTS's 'Black Nativity'

By ARCEAUX MACKLIN
Call and Post Entertainment Editor

"Joseph is a very obedient, quiet young man, who gets very confused by the things that happen to him," stated Rod Ryles, who is cast as the earthly father of the Son of God in Center Stage Theatre's Christmas gospel-musical, "Black Nativity: Joseph's Story." "Joseph faces his father's scorn because he, a carpenter / craftsman's son, has fallen in love with a poor shepherd's daughter. And then Mary, his betrothed, returns pregnant from visiting her cousin Elizabeth, denying that she has been with another man. And on top of that, Mary tells people that an angel came to her saying that she was going to give birth to the Messiah. One side of Joseph loves Mary very much, but there is the other side of him that wants her stoned to death, for humiliating him and his family name. Sometimes he sees Mary as the woman he wants to marry and spend his life with, but other times he thinks she is a harlot. This is just too much for young Joseph. Anyone can see why he was confused and scared."

The production runs Nov. 28 & 29, and Dec. 11, 12, & 13 at the King Center. The show will also be performed at 1390 Oak Street, Old Franklin Junior High School on Dec. 4 & 5. Curtain times 7:30 p.m. There will also be two matinees at the King Center: Nov. 28 and Dec. 12 at 2 p.m.

Ryles, a renowned vocalist, has opened shows for The Smallwood Singers, Phil Driscoll, Vanessa Bell Armstrong, Edwin Hawkins, and The Winans. He received the Gospel Music Excellence Award in 1986 for Best Male Soloist of the Year. Ryles has been a member of the following choirs: Gospel Choir of the Church of Christ of Apostolic Faith, The New Life Gospel Singers, T.E.T.R.E.C. Choir, and the Gospel Truths.

Truman Winbush portrays

JENNIFER McCARTER
...Mary

Helios, Joseph's father. Winbush says of his character, "Helios is a man who thinks he is doing the right thing: God's will. He loves his son. Like many fathers, he wants his son to have more than he had. He wants his son's love most, but he wants it on his own terms." "Black Nativity: Joseph's Story" is Winbush's twelfth production with Center Stage.

Center Stage newcomer, Jennifer Kay McCarter, appears as Mary in the Christmas presentation. McCarter says, "Mary is a frightened young girl. She is most frightened when the angel comes to her. I think Mary responds quite notably; she goes along with the plan." She returns to endure Helios's torment, the town people's scorn, and Joseph's doubts. It was particularly difficult to deal with Joseph's insecurities, but she trusted in his love. I don't think

Mary really quite understood it all until the Christ Child was born." Jennifer concluded, "This show is a real inspiration; it's the high point in my life. And I want to see everyone in Columbus in the

Open house set Nov. 15

On Sunday, Nov. 15, the residents of Franklin County are invited to visit and tour the Same-day Surgery Unit of St. Anthony Medical Center for an Open House from 1 to 3 p.m.

This offers a rare opportunity for people to visit the operating room, see a demonstration of the equipment used during surgery and to get answers to all the questions you've always wanted to ask about surgical procedures.

Refreshments will be served after the "behind the scenes" tour of the surgery suites.

This Open House is being held in conjunction with National audience."

Arthur/director Deborah Childs Macklin said, "I'm pleased with the progress of the show. The actors are now bringing their characters to life, the choir has only a few more songs to learn, and all of the dances are choreographed. It's all coming together. We all hope the community accepts our invitation to see 'Joseph's Story'."

Tickets can be obtained from these cosponsoring organizations: Jordan Baptist Church & The Ohio Consistory #3, Shiloh Church Courtesy Committee, Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity-Beta Omicron Sigma Chapter, New Salem Baptist Church Scholarship Committee, and the Tabernacle Baptist Church Pastor's Service Committee. ARCHIE GRIFFIN

Woody Hayes, a great coach and friend, always talked about "paying forward." He said, "you can't pay back; however, you can always pay forward." Giving to the United Way is a great example of what he meant, because the dollars you give to the United Way effort means services for people. The young, the elderly, the handicapped and families are the beneficiaries of the contributions.

State employees donate $6,000 to UNCF

The Department of Development United Negro College Fund Employee Coordinators recently sponsored their most successful campaign by achieving their goal of over $6,000. The Columbus Plaza Hotel was the scene for their two-hour reception on Friday, October 23, just to say "thank you" to all the participants.

Columbus UNCF President Dr. James A. Allen was on hand to receive the proceeds presented to him by DOD Director David J. Baker. "The 1987 UNCF Campaign Coordinators are delighted to announce that they have reached their goal of $6,000, an amount that far exceeds the reported 1986 UNCF grand total," said Baker. 1987 was the first year that the Department of Development organized a direct UNCF Employee Campaign.

The UNCF State Employee Campaign ran from Sept. 11th through October 16th. The volunteers immediately planned strategies to surpass last year's goal. The first project was a bake sale in the State Office Tower lobby. For several hours 20 dedicated workers -- including Baker worked in rotating shifts to sell cookies, pies, cakes and croissants generating more than $500 for the campaign.

"We Are Keepers Of The Flame," was the theme adopted for the next project. The UNCF Carnival (rescheduled because of rain) filled the Statehouse lawn with plenty of colorful balloons games and prizes to catch the attention of the lunch-hour crowd. Volunteers are currently planning to make the UNCF Carnival an annual event, sponsored by the Department of Development employees.

Many thanks to all of the contributions that gave so generously: the Office of the Governor, Bob Simpson of SUNNY 95 WSNY, Yankee Trader, Wilson Flowers, Anthony-Thomas Candy Shoppes, Pellington Gallery, The Hokey Pokey, The Buckeye Connection, Chez d'or Shop, Arbiter Books, "50 Lincoln Hotel, Lloyd Martin III, LeVeque Tower Parking, Swan Cleaners, Drexel Theater, Krogers, David's San Francisco Restaurant, Kum Ba Ya Office Supply and Ohio DOD Travel & Tourism.

Roberta Basnett and Faye Turner cruise with Girl Friends

MISCELLANEOUS CHATTER

Picture this, if you will — the wind is in your hair and the mist sprinkles your face as your Greek liner clips smoothly through the waters — sounds like Paradise come. It actually was just THAT as approximately 180 Girl Friends/guests cruised the Caribbean Sea recently. (Did you know that the Sea is part of the Atlantic Ocean and is shaped like a big big sock?? — yes, I know that you did). Well, anyway, the New York chapter, The Girl Friends, is the founding chapter of this 36 chapter national organization. They decided to celebrate their 60th anniversary in a very special way ... and that's exactly what they did. They took a Caribbean cruise and invited members from other chapters. Some of the participants were from St. Louis, Atlanta, Orlando, Boston and New Jersey to name a few. Among the sophisticated travelers were Mrs. Roberta Basnett, a member of the Columbus Chapter of The Girl Friends, and her guest, Mrs. Faye

Turner. Buzzy Bee tells me that other Ohioans attending were GF Helen Duffy and hubby Dr. Franklin Duffy of Toledo. The seven day cruise was reported as being beautiful, stylish, and relaxing. The weather was perfect with no rain anywhere on the horizon. The peppy cruise-goers met in Miami and sailed forth to San Juan, Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, Granada, Caracas, Venezuela, and Curacao. You'll remember from the cruises you've taken that the entertainment on board your ship was different and exciting each evening. The same applied to the GF pleasurable anniversary cruise. One night there was a glorious chorus line, one night, a masked ball, and one night, the theme of the entertainment was Mardi Gras complete with costumes. Since costume attire was optional, Roberta opted to shimmer in sequins. The magicians, singers, and the steel band from Granada put everyone under their spell. When the liner docked in Granada, Roberta was especially pleased. She enjoyed the French-flavored culture because it was nostalgic for her. I'm sure that you recall that she studied voice at the Conservatory at the Palace of Versailles for a year or so in Paris, the City of Lights and become quite enamored with the French culture. Even though she enjoyed Granada, Caracas, Venezuela was her favorite spot on this jaunt. She liked its metropolis feeling and the gorgeous mountains that served as a backdrop to the city. Curacao is known for its crystal, and knowing Faye's appreciation of it based on the many beautiful pieces she has, we know that he had a BALL and that there were items she couldn't resist purchasing to add to her collection.

els were popular items in Old San Juan. The Columbus Girl Friends were very fortunate in that when spices in shell covered containers she picked up on her fab cruise. Grandmom's teaching instill Les Wright

Her name is Lester. It's a name that few women have, but it belongs to a woman not like many others — Lester "Les" Wright.

Les was named after her father. She was from a poor, southern family who believed in hard work, dignity and family name.

"My grandmother from Arkansas taught me many important values in life," said Les. "Through the years I grew to understand that my name stood for something. I learned that I, Les Wright, could do anything and to not let obstacles get in the way. You consider what has to be done and then you do it."

LES WRIGHT

Today, Les' name is known to most Columbus citizens in the business, political, church, human service and Black communities.

She sits on so many boards that it's hard to keep count. The boards and service projects which Les chooses to support represent all kinds of people — Black, white, rich and poor.

"It doesn't just rain on the east side of town," said Les. "People are people and sometimes everybody just needs someone. That's why I'm especially proud to be part of the United Way system."

Les is a member of the United Way Board of Trustees and is co-chair of the allocations committee, which distributes time-limited grants to special community programs.

Columbus Arts Council, Martin Luther King Center, I-670 Development Corridor and the 1992 Committee.

"I care about this community and have a strong sense of giving," said Les. "I recognize that there are barriers for people. I know, I'm Black, female and working in a corporate world. But like my grandmother said, 'there are no obstacles that can't be overcome.'"

Les said she believes that you start small and do your best on every job — no matter how menial the task.

"I started as a secretary at Pilgrim Public School," she said. "Education is seen as a way out for Blacks and I worked hard to make sure I did my very best. We were a family ... everybody including the teachers, students and families.

"From the school, I moved to Columbus & Southern Electric Company as a secretary," she continued. "Because of my knowledge of the education system, I became involved with the corporation's education issues and began to work on school levies."

"Through the years, other opportunities have developed and my circle kept expanding to include politics, human services, the arts and the community," she said. "But it all starts with doing your best at every job, no matter how small."

Today, Les is an administrative assistant at the Columbus & Southern's Columbus Division. She represents the company in public affairs issues and concerns.

Her usual day begins at 7:30 a.m. On this day, she'll attend a United Way meeting. At noon, she'll attend a NetCare Funding meeting which will talk about better health care for the community. At 2:45 p.m., Les will be at a Columbus and Southern office meeting and from 4 to 6 p.m. she will be at a Mental Health Board meeting at Second Baptist Church. At 6:30 p.m., the close of her day, she's scheduled for ZONTA, a professional women's service club.

"It's a good day," said Les. "Because everyday is a good day when you can be working for others. I think about my grandmother often, and my family, and I hear her words — 'I'm never alone.'"

In the next few weeks, Les will be working closely with the 1987 United Way campaign to raise $25,562,000. The campaign will close on Nov. 24 when final figures will be announced. "It's important that we reach the United Way goal because the programs benefit everyone," said Les.

Campaign Chairman Doug Fairbanks, vice president and general manager of Ohio Bell Telephone Co., has encouraged everyone to step forward and give.

"We still need to raise dollars to reach our goal," said Fairbanks. "And those dollars mean so much. They mean service to people."

Hints For Homemakers/Inez Kaiser

Here's how to handle dry, tight skin problem

DEAR INEZ: My face is always so dry. All the soaps I use leave my skin feeling tight and dry. How can I make my face feel soft and smooth?

—FANNY DRY-FACE

DEAR FANNY DRY-FACE: All you have to do is give up soap and start using DOVE.

DOVE is not a soap but a beauty bar unlike anything you've ever used before. Its non-soap formula contains one-quarter moisturizing cream and, most important, DOVE won't dry your face like soap can—and does.

Millions of women have discovered what DOVE can do for their skin instead of soap.

Just wash your face with DOVE for seven days. By that time you, too, will be convinced that DOVE really does make your skin feel the way it should—soft and smooth.

The truth is that DOVE beauty bar doesn't dry your face like soap because soap can strip away your skin's protective oils. And DOVE is so much milder than soap.

DOVE also serves to offset the harmful drying effect of unfriendly winter weather. That's because it moisturizes and cleans the skin at the same time.

Countless women all across America agree that DOVE makes their skin feel soft and smooth.

That's why more and more dermatologists these days are recommending DOVE instead of soap for women with all kinds of skin—dry, oily or normal.

Women who have switched to DOVE are convinced that this great product doesn't dry your skin like soap because DOVE simply isn't soap.

So stop worrying about the feel and appearance of your skin. Fanny Dry-Face, and do something about it. The women who use DOVE say it is far better than soap.

HOW TO MAKE FOOD TASTE BETTER
THANKSGIVING AND CHRISTMAS have to be the two most festive holidays on the calendar. We gather our families and friends and we eat and we talk—and then we eat some more.

I suspect that it's also the season when more cooking and baking is done than during the rest of the year combined. That means that the Kaiser Family will be using a great deal of IMPERIAL margarine.

IMPERIAL's rich, buttery flavor is perfect for cooking and baking. The great thing about IMPERIAL is that it tastes so rich and creamy you just might mistake it for butter.

IMPERIAL is ideal to use for baking, seasoning food and serving on the table as a spread. But that's not all. IMPERIAL contains no cholesterol.

This great-tasting margarine is available in all of your favorite forms—stick, soft, light, whipped and diet—to fit everyone's taste.

No matter what the form, IMPERIAL never tasted more buttery or better. When you use it for baking, IMPERIAL gives cakes, cookies and pies that rich, buttery flavor.

It also adds great flavor to your vegetables, sauces, casseroles and dishes like macaroni and cheese. And don't forget, there's no tastier spread for those breads and rolls and biscuits.

Remember, IMPERIAL costs less than butter, but it has the same rich, buttery taste.

CUTTING THE TOUGH STUFF LOOSE
SPEAKING OF COOKING, what about all those dishes and glasses and pots and pans that are waiting to be cleaned after every meal. My recommendation is to put SUNLIGHT dishwashing detergent to work for you.

SUNLIGHT is just what you need to cut through the toughest dishwashing jobs like baked-on, caked-on, stuck-on dried food—even grease.

Once you have finished dinner, there is no need to let dishes just sit. Dishes that sit are the toughest to clean, but SUNLIGHT does the job.

SUNLIGHT makes dishwashing easier for men as well as women. Anyone who has washed dishes by hand knows that the toughest job in the sink is getting rid of those tough, baked-on stains. That's what SUNLIGHT does best.

People who wash dishes like to use a detergent with a pleasant odor. SUNLIGHT has a clean, lemon fragrance that makes everything it touches smell better as well as look cleaner.

SUNLIGHT makes dishwashing easier and cuts the tough stuff loose. It also makes your glassware and silverware look brighter. What more could you ask of a dishwashing detergent.

McFerrin in Columbus

By DONNETTA Z. MAHDI
Call and Post Staff Writer

Bobby McFerrin in concert, by himself, was spectacular, funny, and great family entertainment. For a $15.00 admission price, the concert lasted almost an hour and a half, no intermission, and consisted of just Bobby McFerrin and the audience.

McFerrin did some of his funniest songs: "Down By the River Side," "Wizard of Oz," and an extended version of the "501 Blue Jeans" commercial. In the 501 Blues song, McFerrin generated sound from more than just his mouth. He put the microphone up to his throat, and it sounded as if he was singing bass and alto simultaneously.

What makes Bobby McFerrin's concerts so much fun is his interaction with the audience. He ventured out into the audience several times, once to conduct "The Itzy Bitzy Spider" nursery rhyme complete with choreography -- yes, he had everyone doing it too.

Then he shot right from the hip into Peter Gunn. The second time in the audience he imitated the pronunciation of people's names (Carmen, Wayne, Elizabeth, et.) and made a song for each one, and then made a song containing all the names. This man is so creative, it's unbelievable.

He also asked for participants from the audience to come up on stage. One was a dancer who improvised a dance to McFerrin's music. The second participant improvised on Robin Williams' part in the song "Beverly Hills Blues." The participant knew the tune so well he reminded Bobby when to do his part.

Last, but not least, he once again organized and conducted the Bobby McFerrin Columbus Ensemble. He asked for 16 people, but got roughly 38 to 45 people to sing a song composed just for this performance.

This time McFerrin closed with the National Anthem. He sang flawlessly and with a lot of soul almost in the voice of Mahilla Jackson. The audience gave him a second standing ovation, to which he concluded with "Mickey Mouse." That is how he usually ends his concerts.

Bobby McFerrin is so witty, creative, impulsive, and full of energy that you never want the fun to end. Thank you Bobby!

$47,500 allocated for food, shelter

Any private voluntary and public organization capable of providing emergency food and shelter may be considered for funding. For further information about application and program guidelines, contact Marilyn Sesler, at 227-2735.

"Night of love" at palace leaves audience wanting

By ARCEAUX MACKLIN
Call and Post Entertainment Editor

"The Night of Love," the Alexander O'Neal, Force M.D.'s, and Lillo Thomas concert at the Palace Theatre, turned out to be a real mixed bag.

To begin with, Lillo Thomas wasn't there. He had been sick and had cancelled on the remainder of the tour. Wattline Entertainment, the show's producer, is to be commended for substituting another act, instead of just short-changing their customers. Posse, a raggaec group, opened the show. Their lead singer had good stage presence, and some pretty quick steps. Their island beat was strong, and their harmony was smooth.

The best performance of the evening was turned in by The Force M.D.'s. Their opening was very exciting. Short musical fanfares were played, culminating in a flash of the spotlight, individually illuminating each of the group's four singers, dressed in metallic gold and black costumes. The quartet began with "Here I Go Again," but the band was way too loud. Next they did "Tears," and the mikes failed completely leaving the fellows singing their hearts out, only no one could hear them.

But through these difficulties, the Force M.D.'s had the crowd's enthusiastic support. When asked to wave their hands in the air, the audience responded in unison. Their choreography was original, fresh, and very energetic -- a delight to watch. The group then did their first big hit (from the days when they were rappers) "Itchin' to Scratch."

This was well received by the audience, as were the Michael Jackson and James Brown impersonations, when the vocalists delivered the ballad, "Tender Love," the ladies rushed the stage. The last number was their current hit, "Love Is A House," and they really did bring the house down.

But they didn't leave well enough alone. They concluded the show by wiping their foreheads and other "parts" of their bodies with towels and then throwing the towels to the audience. Now tell me, what do you do with a towel with Force M.D.'s sweat on it?

Alexander O'Neal is supposed to be a romantic singer. But after his recent performance, we must ask, "Is he real or is he a fake? He projects the image of himself as a hunk of Black masculine sensuality, the envy of all the guys, who can captivate women with his voice, and melt them with his intense gaze. But he did not convince the Columbus audience that he should be King of the Crooners. I heard one concert goer say he went to sleep.

O'Neal opened his show with "Hearsay," and called people to the stage before he'd even completed the first number. This was not a good move. About 100 women came, and stood there all night. The other 1400 people on the main floor were wondering something like, "Does he think his stuff's so strong that we should respond without him even singing a song?" Still the first number hadn't finished, when some of the fanatical 100 tried to get on the stage. Three of Columbus's finest positioned themselves to restrain his 100 fans. Now there was a new act, O'Neal and the Cops.

He only sang six songs. His voice has power but not much range. And while he twists and turns and postures himself for the maximum alluring, seductive effect, he just doesn't have the charisma to pull it off. And the show was all O'Neal -- no comic relief, no guest singer to do "Saturday Love," his duet with Cherelle.

He didn't even stop to introduce the band. "If I Were With You Tonight," was entirely too long and he didn't do "Criticize." He ended his show with "Fake," but the best thing about the number was the super bad bass solo. As O'Neal left the stage, boos could be heard from the audience.

The opinion of this writer is if you get a chance to see O'Neal live, buy the album instead.

SWEATY TOWEL ANYONE?—The Force MD's, after overcoming defective sound equipment at their recent Palace appearance, won the Columbus audience with their hip hopping and harmonizing. They brought the house down with "Love Is A House." But they just couldn't leave well enough alone. They ended their show by throwing towels to their fans with fresh sweat on them. Some souvenir, huh?

HOBO HOP SET—The Columbus Chapter Cupidettes Club, Inc. will present the annual Hobo Hop Saturday, Nov. 14, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Leusche Building, Ohio State Fairgrounds. YMCA readies to launch Black achievers program

By LIZ COOK
Call and Post Sports Editor
(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

The YMCA of Columbus, generally recognized for the various athletic programs it offers to the community at-large, will kick-off January 1988 with the initiation of its Black Achievers Program (BAP).

The program is a cooperative effort among the YMCA, the Coalition of Concerned Black Citizens and Columbus Public Schools to decrease the number of low-income Black high school dropouts and unemployed high school graduates, and to increase the number of Blacks pursuing post-high school vocational and college educations.

While BAP is new to Columbus, the program is actually an extension of the pilot program started in Harlem in 1971. Similar programs are operating in Chicago, Detroit, Louisville and as close as Cincinnati, which recently celebrated its 10-year anniversary.

"The program has been around for awhile and it has been successful," said Mitchell Barnes, the program director. He said the thrust of the program will be to provide more positive Black role models for the inner-city Black youth to look up to.

Barnes, 22, said the youth who will be targeted are those who are "at risk." Namely those who are financially disadvantaged, children of single-family households, borderline dropouts and students with disciplinary problems.

He said area high school principals have been asked to select 10 students from their schools who show tendencies toward being low achievers, have little motivation, make low grades and have a high truancy record.

Students, however, who make good grades and have the motivation, but lack a sense of direction and resources for pursuing higher education and career guidance, will also be accepted into the program.

The program can accommodate up to 75 youth due to a partial grant from the United Way.

The area coalition will carry-out the program goals by infiltrating adult Black achievers from area corporations with area youth through various vehicles.

Quarterly workshops will be conducted to develop personal and leadership skills, and open dialogue regarding the challenges facing the Black Community.

...program director

In order to provide a forum for adults and youth to explore opportunities in various career fields, career clusters will be formed.

The Mentorship/Matching Program will be geared toward those students who are at a greater risk of leaving school or experiencing serious disciplinary problems. This format will ensure that those students who are experiencing these problems receive more personalized attention, interaction and guidance, Barnes said.

Rounding out the program is a World of Works Tour to provide students with first-hand experience on the day to day operations of local businesses and a recognition banquet which will honor participating youth, adult achievers, business and volunteers at the end of the year-long program.

Barnes said ongoing funds for the program will be received through corporations who will pay a sponsorship fee based on the number of employees employed by a company.

Barnes said early participants in the program include Donato's Pizza, WSYX-TV and Business First Weekly. He added that he is working to include not only major corporations but small and Black businesses as well.

Although the educational tools have been established, Barnes realizes the real job is in motivating youth to participate. "We're shooting for those kids who are in the middle," he said. "They could go either way with a little bit of influence."

He emphasized parents will play a major role in the success of the program. Barnes said that if parents, teachers and Black achiever participants keep reiterating the importance of education to students, the message will sink in.

"The main thing is to paint a real-life picture to these students that without at least a high school education, the hopes of holding down any kind of decent-paying job is about a million in one shot," he said.

"While the number of Blacks moving into the middle class and upper middle-class doubled in the last decade," he said, "there's still that growing sub-culture of Blacks who remain uneducated, unemployed, un-motivated and without really any help of getting out of that socio-economic situation."

Barnes said that sub-culture is estimated to be 3.5 million Blacks nationally.

Locally, 200 Blacks represented 32.3 percent of all high school dropouts during the 1985-86 school year.

Barnes added, "it's more or less trying to get more Blacks eventually into the work force, into higher education so that they have a career to pursue not only for their benefit, but for the Black community's benefit and for Columbus, Ohio's benefit, because the more people there are in the workforce the more people there will be to keep the financial stability of the city."

Hole just gets deeper for Ohio State buckeyes

By LIZ COOK
Call and Post Sports Editor
(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

The Ohio State Buckeyes proved last Saturday they are their own worst enemy stumbling to fourth place in the conference following a 26-24 loss to Wisconsin in Madison.

Apparently gone with that loss are the hopes of a New Year's Day bowl appearance. Where the Buckeyes do end up depends on the team's last two game performances specifically against Iowa Saturday, (Nov. 14) at Ohio Stadium and the following weekend in Ann Arbor against Michigan. Both teams are tied for the third-place slot in the conference.

The OSU-Iowa matchup will mark the 46th game between the two teams. OSU (5-3-1, 3-3) leads the series 32-11-2. Last year's meeting in Iowa City was won decidedly by OSU 31-10.

Head coach Hayden Fry now in his ninth year at Iowa has compiled to date a 68-36-1 record.

The Hawkeyes enter the game following an impressive comeback behind 29-21 win over second-ranked Indiana and last weekend's 52-24 rout over Northwestern. Iowa's only losses this season have been at the hand of Tennessee (23-22), Michigan State (19-14) and Michigan (37-10).

Iowa set two Big Ten records against the Wildcats as playmaker quarterback Chuck Hartlieb threw seven touchdown passes, including a 95-yarder to favorite receiver Quinn Early. Early's 10 catches for 256 yards broke the previous record of 252 yards held by Wisconsin's Al Toon.

Hartlieb ranked No. 3 in the country in passing efficiency completed 25 of 32 passes for 471 yards. Iowa last week led the league in passing and total offense gaining 257 and 397 yards per game respectively.

Senior running back Kevin Harmon, whose dealings with agent Norby Walters has been under investigation, will play in Saturday's contest. Harmon has gained 480 yards rushing and 225 receiving yards this season.

The Hawkeyes and Ohio State rank very closely with their rushing defense, however, Iowa ranks 12th nationally defending the pass.

The latter fact is bad news for the Buckeye's whose inability to score particularly in the second half has haunted them all season long.

Saturday's game was no exception as the Buckeyes maintained a 24-13 lead at the half, but failed to either stop Wisconsin's scoring drive versus scoring themselves. Although OSU gained more rushing and passing yards (514 to 233) it was ultimately OSU's own four interceptions and three fumbles that secured their loss.

There is still a ray of hope for a post-season bowl berth, however, it will take articulated, well-thought-out playing on the part of the Buckeyes. A feature yet to be seen.

Big ten officials oppose college football playoffs

By LIZ COOK
Call and Post Sports Editor
(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

Big Ten and Pacific-10 conference top officials unanimously voted to oppose any plans for a major college football playoff during a meeting between the two organizations held recently in San Diego.

Concern regarding the expansion of a two-game playoff and opposition to the academic stress a playoff would create for athletes were the two factors conveyed by Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke and Tom Hansen, commissioner of the Pac-10.

As reported by the Big Ten Conference News Service Bureau, Duke said, "another concern the presidents expressed was that a very limited number of institutions might ever have an opportunity to participate in a playoff, regardless of size." Hanson also noted logistical problems which would occur with moving fans and teams during the holiday season.

"The presidents also oppose increasing the pressures placed on college football players and coaches, and believe there are advantages to ending the season with more than one winning team," Duke said.

Seventeen of the 20 chief executive officers within the two conferences were present at the meeting. The other three concurred later.

FORMER STEELER FEATURED SPEAKER--Former Pittsburgh Steelers linebacker Dwight White will be the featured speaker at the Northeast Linden Athletic Association's eighth annual awards and recognition dinner Saturday, (Nov. 21). Free glaucoma screening set

The Ohio Affiliate of The National Society to Prevent Blindness and The Joint Community Church Alliance will be holding a free glaucoma screening on Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Fair Avenue Elementary School, Columbus, from 12 to 4 p.m.

The screening, being held to raise awareness in the Black community of the higher risk Blacks have of contracting glaucoma, is free and open to the public.

Glaucoma is the leading cause of irreversible blindness in adults, affecting over 90,000 people in Ohio, half of whom are not aware they have the disease.

Arthritis may lead to sports injuries

Football is an American passion. But the Arthritis Foundation warns that thousands of youngsters who are active in football and other vigorous contact sports are unwitting candidates for painful difficulties with their joints when they get older, due to traumatic arthritis.

"A sports injury to a joint today can mean a major arthritis problem much later in life unless proper early care is taken," said Dr. Marvin Thomas, chairman of the Medical and Scientific Committee for the Central Ohio Chapter of the Foundation.

Traumatic arthritis is a form of osteoarthritis which results from injuries. In osteoarthritis, cartilage and other joint tissues break down, resulting in pain and difficulty in moving the joints. The condition is chronic, meaning that it will last a lifetime.

Professional football players often develop traumatic arthritis as early as their twenties and thirties, especially in their knees. But,

Dr. Thomas pointed out, they are adults and they know the chances they are taking. Thousands of youngsters play football in high school or college, and many of them don't have orthopedists as team doctors to watch over them and treat their injuries. Many don't have sophisticated equipment to protect them.

"Most sports injuries which youngsters get are minor," said Dr. Thomas. "But many of them require topnotch early care if traumatic arthritis is to be prevented from developing later. There is a particular danger when a previously damaged joint is injured again."

"The medical community, parents and young athletes should all become aware of the potential seriousness of sports injuries, and be sure they are treated appropriately to prevent long-term complications," Dr. Thomas advises. "Special precautions should be taken to protect previously damaged joints from re-injury."

The Arthritis Foundation is the only national voluntary organization working to make life better for the 37 million Americans who have a form of arthritis. For more information about arthritis, contact the Central Ohio Chapter at 2501 North Star Road, Columbus, Ohio 43221. Or call 488-0777, outside Franklin County toll-free, 1-800-422-1492.

Gov. to fill vacancy in Brooks resignation

By GILBERT PRICE
Call and Post Staff Writer
(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

The governor is expected to name, within 60 days, a replacement for the resigning William Brooks, a member of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. Among the candidates for the post is Leonard Lancaster, who is currently serving as Chairman of the Industrial Commission.

Lancaster, an attorney, is a leading candidate for the post.

Under the rules governing the appointment of PUCO members, all applicants must be reviewed by a nominating committee comprised of representatives of consumer, utility and other groups. Candidates must have broad background and experience in law, engineering, economics, or other disciplines relative to utility ratemaking.

By the close of applications on Nov. 6, Lancaster had applied. Speculation had the governor replacing Brooks, a Black, with Lancaster, who has served on the Industrial Commission since 1976 and been its chairman since 1983.

Debbie Vivalo, media liaison for the PUCO, said that the nominating committee is expected to meet Nov. 18 to review the applications, and they must complete the review process, and send four names to the governor, within 30 days.

"That is not to say it will take that long, however," Vivalo added.

After the governor receives the nominating committee's recommendations, he has 30 days to name a replacement.

Published reports have shown that some people within the governor's office expect the process to be completed by early December.

"I'm just an applicant at this point," Lancaster said, downplaying speculation that he is the governor's choice. "I understand there are 25 others."

"I think I'm as qualified as any of the others, and I just have my fingers crossed," Lancaster added.

Lancaster's move is part of a purported arrangement in which Ohio Department of Transportation Director Warren Smith is expected to be named chair of the Industrial Commission.

Governor's legal counsel Alex Shumate has said that Blacks are expected to maintain a strong presence in high-level administrative positions even after the various job shifts occur.

Rev. Wood speaks at harvest event

Reverend A. Wilson Wood and Bethany Baptist Church will be the guest speaker at Stewart Memorial C.M.E. Church's Harvest event on Sunday, November 15, at 4 p.m.

"Stewart Memorial looks forward to the coming of Reverend Wood, his choir, ushers, and members as we celebrate our Annual Harvest Tea, which in all church event featuring a medley of beautifully decorated harvest tables, followed by the inspirational worship service," said Rev. Angelo Montgomery, pastor of Stewart.

All of the boards and auxiliaries of the church, including the stewards, stewardesses, trustees, missionaries, ushers, choir, young adults, Christian Youth Fellowship, and children will display their very best ideas around the themes "The Harvest is Ripe: It's the time to reap," he added.

"The Public is invited to enjoy this wonderful worship and delightful event," Montgomery noted.

The general chairpersons for this festival event are: Robert James, Carl Whitaker, Pia Loyde, and Theresa Coursey.

He has also pushed for the award of architectural and engineering contracts to minority firms. Sykes, a graduate of Morgan

State University in Maryland, is the former head of Baltimore's economic opportunity agency. He served as director of administration under Celeste at the Peace Corps, and was on the Maryland Board of Education from 1971 to 1981.

Although there has been no announcement of his successor, speculation has centered around Director of Highway Safety William Denihan; Department of Liquor Control director William Flaherty; and Administrative Services assistant director Karen Nowak.

Sykes is expected to leave by the first of the year.

Jaycees

The Ohio Jaycees are in the process of establishing a Jaycee Chapter in the Mt. Vernon Plaza area. The Jaycees are a leadership training organization for people aged 21 to 39, inclusive.

Members of the North Columbus and other chapters will be visiting throughout the area during the next 30 days to talk to as many young people as possible about being the founders of this new Chapter. They will be able to answer any questions you might have about Jaycees, so when they stop by please feel free to ask about whatever you want to know.

In addition to leadership training, the Jaycees offer various types of management and individual development programs to help you better manage your time, deal with stress, manage your finances, speak better, etc.

As an incentive for you to join, membership dues for the Jaycees through October 31, 1987 will be only $20.00. The normal cost is $30.00. Employers have been known to fully or partially pay for dues of their employees.

New Wilberforce U. president shoots for 'realistic' goals

By TED OSHODI
Call and Post Columbus City Editor

DAYTON, Ohio—Dr. John L. Henderson, 55, a Cincinnati educator, says when he takes over the gavel Jan. 3 as the new president of Wilberforce University, he will try to determine "realistic" goals with the board of trustees in the next several months.

"I see some unique features in Wilberforce, and I think we can capitalize on those," said Henderson, former vice president for institutional development, Cincinnati Technical College.

Among the key goals, Henderson said, would be attracting and retaining students at Wilberforce. The university now has about 740 students.

He said the university is half-way toward the building-fund goal of $4.5 million. On the drawing boards are an administration building, a gymnasium and student activities building.

Wilberforce University's Board of Trustees Chairman Bishop Richard Hildebrand announced Henderson's appointment at a press conference Nov. 6, at the Dayton Airport Hotel.

Henderson, the 17th president, succeeds Dr. Yvonne Walker-Taylor, daughter of the 10th president of the country's first Black college.

"We also need to take a look at maintaining quality academic program, comparable and competitive salaries for faculty and staff," Henderson said.

Henderson was selected from 70 candidates, after a year's search by a 14-member committee. Committee Chairman Dr. James R. Tanner said Henderson is outstanding because of his record, his familiarity with the university's history, and that "he embodied, in largest degree, the qualities we were looking for."

Henderson, father of three children, held administrative positions at Sinclair Community College, Dayton, and at Xavier University and the University of Cincinnati.

In addition to his duties at Cincinnati Technical College, he served from 1984 to 1986 as interim executive coordinator of the Greater Cincinnati Consortium of Colleges and Universities.

Henderson, who has been active in leadership roles in civic activities in Cincinnati, also belongs to many professional associations.

A graduate of Hampton Institute in Virginia, Henderson holds both his master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Cincinnati.

Asked what she plans to do during her retirement, Dr. Walker-

Taylor said, "I will be involved in bringing into fruition the dream of the building projects. My greatest satisfaction will be when we get $100 million."

Groundbreaking for the building projects is expected in the spring, according to Bishop Hildebrand.

Dr. Henderson said he will begin his presidency by listening to Wilberforce students, staff and faculty to understand the rhythm of the university.

$2-million med center

cal centers were also developed to serve low-income individuals and families, says he hopes the Main Street MEDCenter will serve as a catalyst in attracting other private sector projects to the area.

"Our facility is injecting much needed capital and medical services into the area," he notes, "but hopefully, it's just the beginning. We believe our investment—based on the area's future—is a good one, and that other opportunities exist to help this part of Columbus achieve its goals of revitalization."

Dr. Master says the new medical center will employ over 40, and will be a provider for Family HealthNet of Ohio and several other HMOs and health plans in addition to its fee-for-service practice.

The facility took more than a year to develop and was designed by Feinknopf, Macioce, Schappa Architects, Columbus. It has received the full support of the Eastside Businessmen's Association and other eastside merchants and community groups.

"Our primary objective in restoring and remodeling the building was to accentuate its art deco motif which dates back to the late 1920s," said Dan LaBozetta, the project's primary architect. "Even the original marquee will be restored."

Power Pharmacy, Inc., a subsidiary of Health Power, Inc. which provides retail and wholesale drug services to patients and physicians statewide, will also be located in the medical center.

Dr. Master's other medical centers in Columbus recently include the Master's MEDCenter, 777 N. High St.; Parsons Ave. Medical Clinic, Inc., 1493 Parsons Ave.; and Town Street Medical Clinic, Inc., 867 W. Town St.

Choir safe after W.Va. bus accident

A Columbus based gospel choir escaped catastrophe after being involved in a bus accident early Saturday morning.

Members of the Columbus Chapter Choir of the Gospel Music Workshop of America crashed into a truck stopped on I-77 (the West Virginia Turnpike) on Saturday about 5 a.m. near Beckley, W.Va. They were scheduled for appearances in Charlotte and Greensboro, N.C., but injuries prevented them from completing those engagements.

Although the choir members escaped serious injury, the mishap claimed the life of Emory Davis, 12, of Pearisburg, W.Va. Davis was crushed when the bus hit the rear of his father's truck. His father's vehicle, which was stopped for repairs, was not completely off of the roadway when the accident occurred. Fog and smoke from nearby forest fires hampered visibility.

After hitting the truck, the bus went off the road, traveled down a ravine and crashed into a hillside.

As many as 23 gospel members were injured. Among the more seriously injured were: Frances Huggins, Margie Fields, Burnett Mecalfe and Rosia Edwards.

Jackson received more than 55 percent of the vote becoming the first Black female to be elected to the bench in Franklin County. Jackson, 35, had been appointed as a municipal court judge in January of 1987.

Debbie Phillips, spokesperson for Governor Celeste, said that "nothing's imminent" in the appointment of Common Pleas Court judges to replace Britt and Smith.

In the past, the names of Columbus city councilman Ben Espy and prominent attorney Napoleon Bell had arisen as common pleas court candidates, but both had declined. Now, the name of assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Letts has been mentioned as a possible candidate.

Letts, as head of the criminal division in the Columbus office, has been responsible for several key cases, including the Jay T. Will cocaine distributing case and the prosecution of a prescription drug ring on the near north side.

Letts' father was formerly a judge in Grand Rapids, Mich. He formerly served as an assistant attorney general under former Attorney General William J. Brown, and has, since 1979, been with the U.S. attorney's office. He is the only Black among 25 attorneys in the Southern District.

Letts said he has been approached about his interest in a court seat.

"I certainly would be interested in discussing it, and I'd consider it" if the seat were offered, Letts said.

Phillips said that the governor's office is not prepared to announce any judgeships at this time, and there has been no formal timetable developed for the appointments.

Charity Newsies to raise funds

For the 81st time, Charity Newsies will take to the streets to raise money for school children in Franklin County who lack clothing for the winter months.

The official kick-off of the drive is the banner raising which will be conducted Friday, Nov. 13, at noon on the corner of Broad and High, the former Roy's Jewelers location.

This year's theme for the drive is "Newsies and you-giving, caring, sharing for children."

"The purpose of the Newsies organization is to see that no children are kept out of school for lack of adequate clothing," states drive chairman, Paul Eberts. Adhering to the bylaws of the organization, 100 percent of all donations go directly to clothing needs. Last year, the 300-plus membership raised more than $400,000 dollars and provided for more than 8,000 children in the community.

The Marion Franklin band will perform during the banner raising ceremony, joining the other Newsies and Mayor Dana "Buck" Ricehart in the start of this year's campaign.

The actual newspaper sale will be December 12, as the Newsies continue this long-running tradition. The Newsies will also be participants in the Secret Santa parade.

The Charity Newsies is not affiliated with any other fundraising organization.

High school playoffs

For the second consecutive year the Mifflin High Schools Puncers have earned a state football playoff berth.

The Puncers (10-0) will compete in Division II against Watterton tomorrow night (Nov. 13) at Dublin High School. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Last year's appearance in the playoffs, and an eventual 24-10 loss to Wooster in the regional finals, made them the first City League team ever to compete in the state playoffs.

Although only in his first year as head coach of the Puncers, Coach Charles Eichinger has experienced playoff action before leading Mifflin through the '86 past-season games following an illness which sidelined then head coach Bob Orth.

The Puncers totally dominated the City League Red Division due in part to versatile quarterback Chris Owens and explosive running back Lloyd Abington.

The City League championship crown will be decided tomorrow in Franklin County Municipal Stadium when Blue Division representative Brookhaven (8-2, 5-2) will play Beechcroft from the Red Division in the 7:30 p.m. contest.

Brookhaven the reigning City League champs defeated Eastmoor 32-30 last year to win its first division and second league title in the school's history.

Second-year Coach Gregg Miller earlier this season eyed defense as the key to a Bearcats' successful season with top players including tailback Wilbert Brown, guard Ken Kirby and defensive and Larry Godfrey.

With Mifflin in the state playoffs Beechcroft enters the title game (6-4, 5-1). The Cougars tout two all-city selections in quarterback Ron Page and tackle Mark Lewis.

Celebrity Roundup

By Ida M. Peters

Q. — Singer Joe Williams recently appeared at Ethel's Place in Baltimore. What's his fullname, how old is he and what's his home town? What big-time bands did he sing with?

CLARENCE SMITH
Baltimore, MD

A. — Blues, jazz and soul singer Joe (Joseph Goreed) Williams was born in Codele, Ga. in 1918 which makes him 69. He was vocalist for Lionel Hampton, Coleman Hawkins, Andy Kirk and Count Basie.

• • •

Q. — In regard to your piece in Dawn Magazine, I wish to make the situation clearer. Your answer was correct but a bit ambiguous as to the incipency of "Shuffle Along" and I want to set the record straight. "Shuffle Along" was the brainchild of Flournoy E. Miller and I his daughter now own all of his shows and can document all I have written you.

"Shuffle Along" was written by Flournoy E. Miller and the entire production was under his personal supervision, as all programs and written material will attest. "Miller and Lyles" were the only ones who raised money for the show or contacted backers.

Eubie Blake was Jim Europe's pianist. Jim Europe was a personal friend of Miller and he asked Miller to use Eubie if ever the time would arise that he could be of value to him.

Will Vodery, who wrote the music for "The Mayor Of Dixie" when it was presented at the Peking Theatre in Chicago, went to London and was there when Miller and Lyles decided to try for Broadway.

Miller remembered his promise to Jim Europe. Miller changed the name to "Shuffle Along" and wanted additional music which Sissle and Blake supplied.

OLIVETTE MILLER
Las Vegas, Nev.

A. — Eubie Blake's memories of meeting Flournoy E. Chevy-Corvette Add-ons

In a departure from past practice, Chevrolet has cooperated in the design of the GTO fiberglass kit which has been made available in limited quantities through authorized GM parts dealers (Part -10051200).

The kit—a collaboration of Chevrolet Special Products, GM Design Staff, Protofab Engineering and Autofab, Inc.—improves the production Corvette's high-speed aerodynamics.

It contains fiberglass body pieces, fastening hardware and installation instructions. Though the kit comes primed, it does require installation and painting.

Initially, only fiberglass kits have been manufactured. However, demand has dictated tooling to produce RTM (resin transfer molding) parts, a pliable, non-fiberglass material that will replace the fiberglass kits.

Portofino — Powered by Lamborghini

Portofino, a unique advanced concept vehicle, was unveiled by Chrysler at the Frankfurt Auto Show.

Portofino was created by Chrysler Motors' international design team. Drawing upon the expertise of Coggiola of Turin, Italy and Lamborghini, the prototype combines advanced aerodynamic styling and body design concepts with the performance of an ultimate European touring sedan.

Portofino's engine and powertrain are by Lamborghini. Powered by Lamborghini's 3485cc V-8, the mid-engine touring sedan has true sports car performance with a top speed in excess of 150 mph (240 km/h). The engine is teamed with an all alloy Lamborghini 5-speed transmission.

Portofino's clean, functional styling features four rotational doors and clam-shell opening hood and decklid. The front doors pivot up and out of the way to allow for ease of entry. Ease of entry for rear passengers is enhanced by the unibody design that eliminates the traditional "B" pillar.

Portofino's interior has an ergonomically adjustable driver's cockpit. The cockpit has a fully adjustable instrument pod, steering wheel and switch gear. Individual control areas are provided for all four occupants.

Portofino has independent front and rear suspension, with McPherson struts, coil springs and telescopic shock absorbers and ventilated disc brakes front and rear.

Africa-Based Religion Thrives Far From Africa

Anthropologist studies Africa and its differences

By P.A. Tatum

A trip to the central African nation of Cameroon as a 19-year-old foreign exchange student was the turning point of Sheila Walker's life.

Until then, Dr. Walker, 42, a native of New Jersey, had been interested in political science and had majored in the subject at Bryn Mawr College with the thought of possibly becoming a diplomat.

Even before she ventured to the Cameroon with three other non-black Americans, Dr. Walker realized political science did not answer the "whys" of the people questions that formed in her mind.

More than 20 years later, Dr. Walker, now a cultural anthropologist, reflected on the events that helped to shape an impressionable, curious young woman's life. She is a tall, slim woman, who wears her naturally curly hair short. She has a wide expressive mouth that smiles easily.

Early during her visit to Cameroon, Dr. Walker said she was invited to the mayor's house of the town in which she was living.

"He (the mayor) opened a bottle of whiskey, Johnny Walker Red... and he poured some on the ground. I thought, 'why is he doing that?' Through my mind ran this whole dialogue... there must be a fly in the bottle, because there were flies where we were. I thought he must have wanted to get rid of it discretely, so I shouldn't ask."

Dr. Walker said she realized the whiskey had been bottled in Scotland, a land with a much cooler climate and with fewer flies, "so how did the fly get in there?"

"Then I thought, well, even if there were a fly in the bottle, alcohol kills bugs, so it doesn't matter. That was my explanation, to me, about this gesture which was totally off base, of course," he said laughing at the memory.

The real answer, she said, was that the mayor of this town was "pouring libations to the ancestors."

In Africa, in traditional societies, "the ancestors are looking over you — you don't drink without giving them something to drink too," Dr. Walker said. This toast also is asking them for a blessing.

Dr. Walker said this custom occurs in other parts of the black world, "I've seen it in Suriname (in South America) and Brazil and even here in New York."

Where in New York? "I saw it on 42nd Street. A man poured alcohol on the ground,

For several years cultural anthropologist Dr. Sheila Walker has studied the West African religion, Candomble. The religion, which dates back to before the time of Christ, originally was worshipped by the Yoruba people of present day Nigeria and Benin, according to Dr. Walker.

Today, not only do many of the above mentioned West African people practice Candomble, but thousands of others in Brazil, Cuba and the Caribbean do as well.

Unlike the black people who were forced to the United States as slaves and were unable to keep their African religions, many of the black people of South America and the Caribbean were able to retain parts of their religion, Dr. Walker said.

The Bahai province of Brazil is the mecca for Candomble. Believers of Candomble pay homage to the Orishas. The Orishas are forces of nature, such as the ocean, thunder, plant life which are represented in personified form.

The Orishas, every person has two Orishas ruling their destiny, are not spirits, Dr. Walker said firmly reemphasizing they are forces of nature.

Examples of two Orishas are Ogum, who represents iron and things made of iron. A person whose Orisha is Ogum is supposed to be a bellicose person.

Oxum is the Orisha of fresh water. She is a vain, pretty Orisha who is said to have many maternal instincts.

Other religions and beliefs systems during the years have influenced and modified the religion of Candomble. In Brazil, which has a strong Catholic tradition, the practice of Candomble was discouraged and many of its followers merged Candomble with Catholicism.

Today, with more religious freedom in Brazil, followers of Candomble can openly practice this religion without fear of persecution. Whites as well as blacks practice Candomble and believe in the forces of nature, the Orishas.

Apparently, it was (a gesture) for the boys, his buddies in prison, upstate."

Also during that fateful trip to Cameroon, Dr. Walker said she learned how her good, American manners did not always work.

As a girl, her mother had taught her to politely refuse offers to stay for dinner. "You say, 'no thank you, I have to go home and eat.'"

"When I went to Cameroon, I went to someone's house and he offered me some food but I had just eaten, so I said 'no thanks.' He insisted, but I thought he was being polite and I, too, was being polite (and refused.)"

Dr. Walker said she saw the same man several weeks later. "He said, 'you remember me ... you wouldn't eat my food.' Her polite, well meaning actions actually had been an insult.

"I had offended him, I was telling him his food wasn't good enough for me, especially given that I was a foreigner. From then on, I ate everything that was offered to me whether I liked it or not."

"What she also learned from that episode was that no matter how well mannered you are, those manners certainly are not universal and 'however anything is done in the society in which you live, it is probably done differently somewhere else.'"

"That was my major experience and it was good to learn it then," she said.

Festive dishes for the holidays

GOLDEN ROAST TURKEY

Remove giblets and neck from turkey, rinse under cold water. Place in 3 quart saucepan with water, 1 teaspoon salt, whole black peppers, onion, carrots and celery. Heat to boiling, cover, reduce heat and simmer for about 1 hour or until tender.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Rinse turkey inside and out with cold water. Pat dry. Sprinkle inside of turkey with salt and pepper.

Fill cavity under neck skin with about 1/2 cup stuffing. Fasten skin to bird with skewer or turkey pins. Fill cavity of bird with stuffing, do not pack. Close opening with turkey pins and heavy thread.

Using soft cord, truss bird securing wings to side of bird and tying legs together. Place turkey breast side up on rack in roasting pan. Rub bird all over with butter, margarine, oil or mayonnaise. This is to keep skin moist and give a good browning to the skin. Place a large sheet of foil loosely over bird.

Roast at 325 degrees following the following timetable:

Ready to cook weight	Hours to roast
6-8 lb	3-3 1/2 hours
8-12 lb	3 1/2-4 1/2 hours

12-16 lb	4 1/2-5 1/2 hours
16-20 lb	5 1/2-6 1/2 hours
20-24 lb	6 1/2-7 hours

The schedule is for stuffed turkey, unstuffed will take a little less time. The final test for doneness is to move the leg of the turkey. Turkey is done if leg joint moves easily. The softness of the flesh on the drumstick and thigh are further signs of doneness. A meat/poultry thermometer inserted so that the bulb is in the center of the inner thigh muscle should register not less than 165. Plan to finish cooking 20 to 30 minutes before serving time so that the meat can be carved more easily and there is time to make gravy.

HERBED APPLE CORNBREAD STUFFING

1/4 cup instant minced onion
1/4 cup water
7 cups cornbread cubes (1 lb. 8 oz.), toasted
2 cups peeled diced apple

Use to stuff turkey. Bake following favorite directions. Or, place in a greased shallow 2-quart casserole. Cover and bake in a preheated 325 F oven until hot, about 1 hour.

Toyota MR2 — More Horsepower

The Toyota MR2 generates more torque and horsepower in 1988 with the introduction of a new model with a supercharged engine.

The two-seat sports car 1.6-liter, 16-valve, twin-cam powerplant adopts a Roots-type supercharger with an air-to-air intercooler, boosting horsepower 30 percent, from 112 to 145 horsepower.

The supercharger also complements the MR2 engine's inherent top-end performance with a substantial improvement in torque, increased, almost 45 percent.

The Toyota-designed supercharger, like a turbocharger, forces air—above atmospheric pressure—into the engine to increase combustion pressure and power.

But unlike the exhaust-driven turbocharger, which can lag behind engine speed, the supercharger is belt-driven (off the crankshaft) and supplies added performance in direct relationship to crankshaft speed.

Throttle response is almost instantaneous, and the performance numbers show it. With the supercharged engine, the MR2's 0-60 mph time drops a full second.

Toyota has developed an electromagnetic clutch and air-bypass system that engages and disengages the supercharger as demand varies. This eliminates possible supercharger drag on the engine at low speed and maintains outstanding fuel economy.

The Toyota supercharger's selective operation maintains high EPA fuel-economy ratings of 24/city, 30/hwy with 5-speed manual transmission and helps provide quiet engine operation at cruising speeds.

Lincoln — First front-wheel Drive

Lincoln Continental is a technically advanced, front-wheel-drive, six-passenger, four-door luxury sedan with the modern design and levels of luxury consistent with the Continental heritage.

With a 0.36 coefficient of drag, Continental's aerodynamic styling features aircraft-type doors, wraparound full-width taillamps, flush-mounted glass and integrated front and rear bumpers.

A vertical-style grille, mounted flush with the aerodynamic halogen headlamps, retains — yet updates — the Continental identity.

A computer-controlled, four-wheel independent air-suspension system with dual-damping struts provides a smooth, level ride and optimum stability and handling under all types of road, load and driving conditions.

The four-wheel disc brake system with electronic anti-lock automatically pumps the brakes to help maintain steering control and vehicle stability under hard braking. This helps the car stop more quickly and in a straighter line, especially on wet or slippery surfaces.

A new speed-sensitive, variable-assist rack-and-pinion power steering system varies steering effort to provide a firm, secure feel at highway speeds, and reduced steering effort at lower speeds and during parking maneuvers.

Power is provided by a sophisticated 3.8-liter V-6 engine which features multi-port electronic fuel injection for good driveability, and a balance shaft to eliminate engine vibration. The engine is teamed with a smooth, efficient four-speed automatic over-drive transaxle.

Lincoln Continental will be the first Ford Motor Company car to feature the Service Bay Diagnostic System (SBDS) — a new computer system that will dramatically affect how Continental will be serviced.

Service technicians can attach the SBDS to Continental's on-board computer to use direct vehicle computer information as a basis for diagnosing and correcting difficult repair problems.

Mercury — Powertrain Improvements

Powertrain improvements and an all-new monochromatic paint treatment highlight Mercury Cougar for 1988.

The 3.8-liter, V-6 engine has smoother operating characteristics through addition of a balance shaft, and improved driveability and performance with addition of multi-port fuel injection.

Dual exhausts and a higher axle ratio are added to 5.0-liter V-8-equipped XR-7 models for increased performance. Other added standard features include a heavy-duty 48-amp-hour battery and alternator.

The three monochromatic color treatments on the sporty XR-7—black, scarlet and white—include grille bars, front and rear bumpers, wide bodyside moldings and rear-view mirrors.

New 16-spoke aluminum wheels are exclusively available on Cougar XR-7. Other standard XR-7 features include a new analog performance cluster and cornering lamps.

Award winners — Ford Division

Thunderbird Turbo Coupe and Taurus — back-to-back winners of Motor Trend magazine's prestigious Car of the Year award — highlight Ford Division's car lineup for 1988.

The new subcompact Festiva, a restyled Tempo, the award-winning Mustang, the popular Escort and luxurious LTD Crown Victoria round out the car lineup.

Taurus has a variety of equipment upgrades for 1988. Smoother shifting is provided by a three-speed transaxle with a fluidically linked converter.

New standard features include trip odometer, electronic AM/FM stereo search radio, dual electric remote control mirrors and tinted glass on the L series; diagnostic alert lights and bolt-on luxury wheel covers on the MT-5 model; diagnostic instrument cluster with tachometer on the LX model, and improved noise insulation on all Taurus sedans and wagons.

New for 1988 on the Thunderbird are multiple-port electronic fuel injection on the 3.8-liter V-6 engine and a standard electronic digital clock.

Significant styling changes and the addition of multiple-port fuel injection give Tempo a sophisticated new look.

Standard on all Tempos is a motorized front seat, passive restraint system, and a supplemental driver's side air bag restraint system also is available.

The front-wheel-drive Escort series includes two-door hatchback models of the Pony, GT, GL and EXP Luxury Coupe. The GL model is available in a four-door hatchback and four-door station wagon.

Mustang GT heads a well-balanced lineup of hatchbacks, sedans and convertibles. Complementing the GT, with its powerful 5.0-liter engine, is the LX model, with an economical 2.3-liter four-cylinder engine standard.

Also standard are power steering, power front disc/rear drum brakes, electronic engine controls and multiple-port electronic fuel injection.

Although just 140.5 inches long, the newly introduced Festiva has as much interior room — 98.4 cubic feet — as some cars up to two feet longer.

The front-wheel-drive Festivas, L and L "Plus" models have a 1.3-liter, four-cylinder engine with a standard four-speed manual transaxle. The LX model has a five-speed manual transaxle.

Crown Victoria and Country Squire have a new front-end treatment and other styling changes that give these cars a fresh new look for 1988. New standard features include all-season tires, seat pads with improved lumbar support, and functional drip moldings.

Added to the option list for 1988 are Insta-Clear heated windshield and a high level audio system.

Mazda 929 Luxury Sedan

With this new model, the 929, Mazda enters the highly competitive luxury sedan segment of the market.

The Mazda 929 features several new technological and engineering developments, including a smooth, powerful fuel-injected, 3.0-liter, 18-valve V-6 engine.

The 929 also features a unique new E-link independent rear suspension and a computer-designed, dynamically-tested, highly-rigid bodyshell.

The 929 uses a front-engine, rear-wheel-drive configuration. Serious consideration was given to using front-wheel-drive, but Mazda felt that for an automobile in this class, the rear-wheel-drive layout offered superior handling, ride quality and favorable weight distribution without adversely compromising interior spaciousness.

The new Mazda 929 is powered by an all-new 3.0-liter V-6 engine. Designed and developed specifically for use in the new 929, this engine combines high-performance with low noise and vibration.

Each of the V-6's cylinder banks has an overhead camshaft which operates three valves per cylinder, two intake and one exhaust.

Hydraulic valve lash adjusters are used for quiet, maintenance-free operation. This engine features electronic fuel injection and a sophisticated variable induction system that improves engine breathing and response.

Power output for the V-6 is 158 horsepower at 5500 rpm and 170 ft.-lbs. of torque at 4000 rpm. EPA fuel economy ratings for the V-6 are 18 mpg City/24 mpg Highway with the five-speed manual transmission and 19 mpg City/23 mpg Highway with the four-speed overdrive automatic transmission.

Twin-chamber, fluid-filled engine mounts are used to absorb engine rocking and vibration for smoother, quieter operation.

Buick's All-New Regal Limited

Buick Motor Division will introduce an all-new Regal for 1988, featuring front-wheel drive and the most aerodynamic design of any Buick in history.

While the design is new, the front appearance, with vertical ribs in the grille, bears a family resemblance to the former Regal.

The new Regal's co-efficient of drag, as measured in wind-tunnel tests, was .299 for a clay model and .305 for a prototype, which is about a 33 percent improvement over the former Regal.

The big improvement was made possible by two major design features—flush glass and "doors-into-roof" construction.

The projected EPA fuel-economy rating is 29 miles per gallon highway and 20 city.

Regal's engine is a 2.8-liter V6 with multi-port fuel injection, rated at 125 horsepower and 160 ft. lbs. of torque. Also standard is four-speed automatic transmission with overdrive.

Among a long list of other standard features are power-assisted four-wheel disc brakes, tungsten-halogen composite headlamps, power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering, side-window defogger outlets.

Flush door handles in the center pillar, an automatic safety belt system, wet-arm windshield wipers and a state-of-the-art four-wheel independent suspension system.

A sound-deadening acoustical panel installed between the engine and passenger

Cutlass Supreme: Midsize Sophistication

In a major redesign, the all-new, front-wheel-drive Cutlass Supreme features coupe models in three trim levels. The Cutlass Supreme, Cutlass Supreme SL and Cutlass Supreme International-Series will be introduced by Oldsmobile in mid-1988.

Designed around a specific aerodynamic statement, the new Cutlass Supreme provides an expressive new profile which generates a low .32 coefficient of drag.

The aerodynamic theme is evident through extensive use of flush glass and subdued "C" pillars in the rear quarter area. Flush mounted door handles integrated into the "B" pillars contribute to the sleek appearance.

Shorter by less than an inch from last year's model, the Wheelbase of the 1988 Cutlass Supreme is 107.5 inches. The interior dimensions of head room, leg room and shoulder room for the 1988 Cutlass Supreme are comparable to last year's model.

Also, at 3,175 pounds, the new Cutlass Supreme is about 300 pounds lighter than last year's model.

The interior of the Cutlass Supreme matches the exterior in expressiveness. The driver receives information through a vacuum fluorescent instrument panel cluster featuring a digital speedometer and trip odometer and electronic analog fuel gauge.

Driver messages are electronically displayed to the right of the instrument cluster for convenience.

Interior controls are electronic and designed to operate with minimal effort. Interior controls are also illuminated for ease of operation in low light situations.

Driver and passenger comfort is specifically addressed through use of low profile contoured front bench or bucket seats. The Cutlass Supreme SL is standard with a 55/45 divided bench front seat with armrest and individual controls.

Driver and front passenger in the Cutlass Supreme International Series are treated to front contoured bucket seats with four-way power articulation.

The seats also feature four-way manual seat adjusters. Driver and passenger seats also recline. Rear bucket seats with a console are standard in the Cutlass Supreme International Series.

The standard feature list for the Cutlass Supreme includes a stainless steel exhaust system, four-wheel power disc brakes, power assisted rack-and-pinion steering;

Delco electronically tuned AM/FM stereo radio with four-speaker sound system and base-coat/clear-coat enamel finish. Also standard on the Cutlass Supreme is a "lubed-for-life" suspension.

"Wet arm" windshield wipers are also standard equipment on the Cutlass Supreme. The new wipers direct windshield washers fluid to the windshield directly through the wiper arm. The spray is controlled regardless of speed or driving conditions.

The Cutlass Supreme International Series combines comfort with the added dimension of excellent roadhandling.

New Yorker Turbo — Upscale

The Chrysler New Yorker Turbo for 1988 model year is the same four-door front-wheel drive sedan that carried the New Yorker nameplate successfully in 1987. The key difference is that Chrysler is equipping all models in this body style with its 2.2-liter turbo engine.

Standard equipment is extensive. The 146-horsepower turbo engine with electronic fuel injection is paired with an automatic transmission. Steering, windows, door locks, side mirrors, and front disc brakes are power-operated.
